CHANBARA DRILL — "10 MAN KUMITE"

- One participant ("Defender") faces 10 separate opponents ("Attacker") with matched weapons (e.g., short sword vs. short sword).[1]
- Each bout begins directly after the previous bout ends.
- Referees or Attackers distinguish bout outcome.
- Defender can only provide input on hits they received but were not called.

Possible bout outcomes:
  Win – Defender scores without being scored on
  Loss – Defender is scored on without scoring
  Draw – Defender scores at the same time as the Attacker

[1] Variations:
- Unmatched weapons (kid sword vs. adult sword, short knife vs. long knife)
- Single defender vs. multiple attackers
- Same attacker repeatedly
- Restricted targets
- 10 attackers are used because they are easily converted to a percentage. 25, 50 or 100 could be used as well.
